

ABOUT US

The Gerald L. Ignace Indian Health Center (GLIHC) began in the 1970's as a response to urgent health disparities within the Native American community, and has grown into a full-service clinic offering medical, dental, pharmacy, behavioral health, and wellness services. It is the only Urban Indian Health Center in Wisconsin and 1 of only 5 federally qualified health centers in Milwaukee County, and continues to be guided by Native traditions, while serving over 2,600 patients each year.

GLIHC strives to improve the essential health, peace and well-being of those residing in the metropolitan Milwaukee area through additional community programming including culturally-based education and awareness offered to people of all tribes, races and ethnicities.

Located on Milwaukee's south side, the Gerald L. Ignace Indian Health Center welcomes all individuals and families seeking healing and connection.

Help support our mission to continue providing these essential services and programs to Milwaukee's Natives and surrounding community.

GERALD L. IGNACE INDIAN HEALTH CENTER

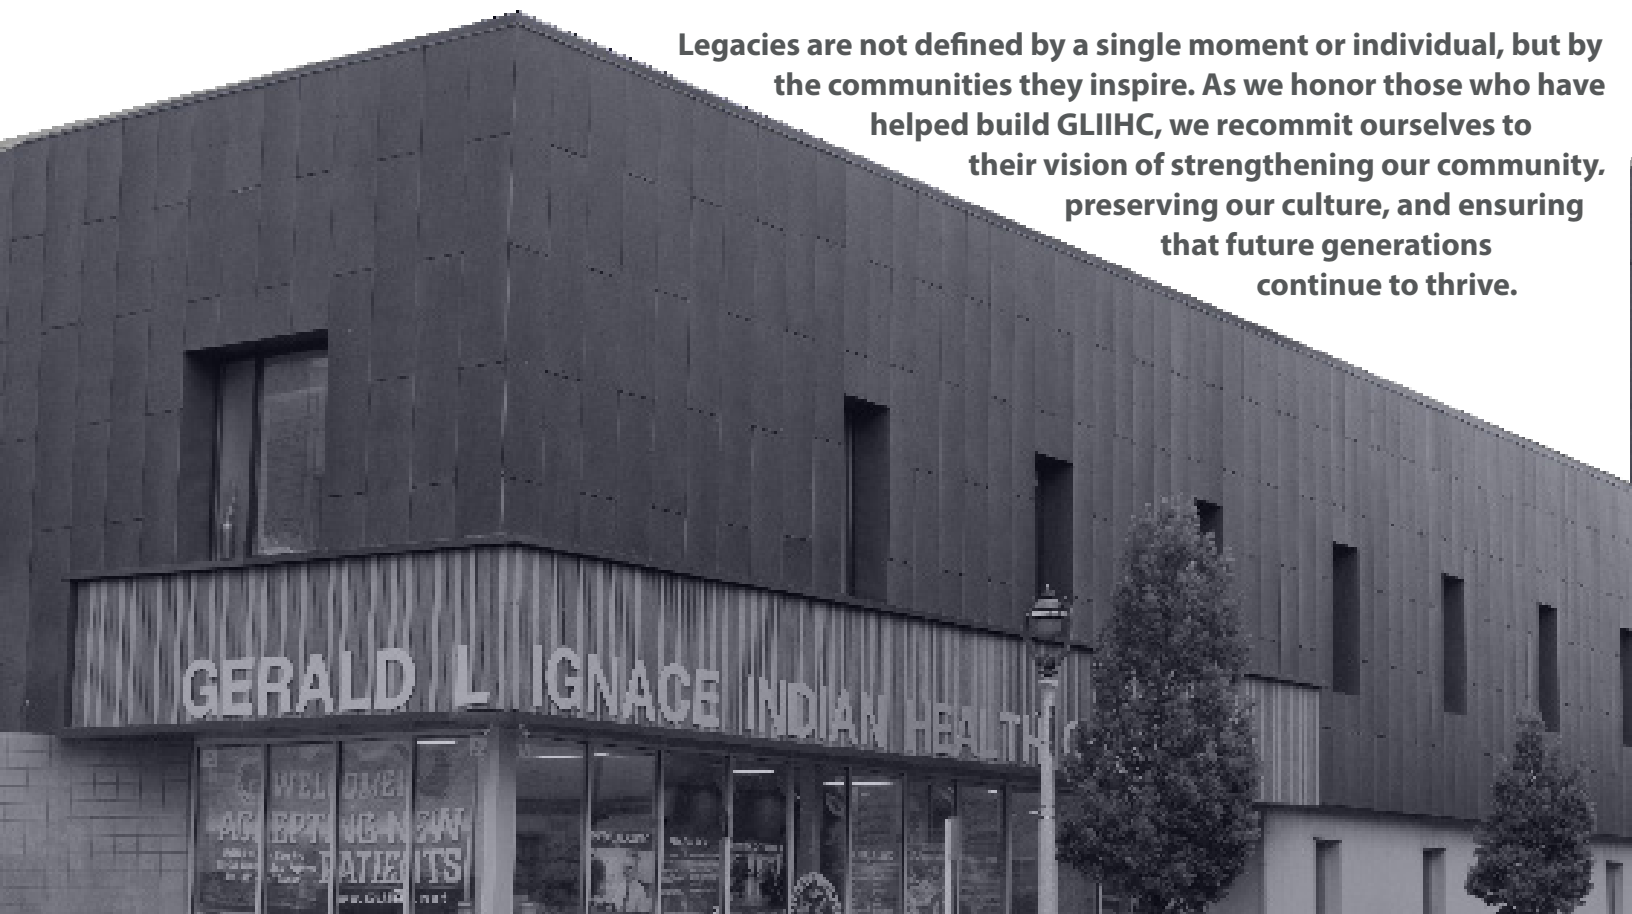

BUILDING COMMUNITY, HONORING LEGACY

For nearly two decades, the Red Shawl Gala has celebrated the strength, resilience, and spirit of the Native community while supporting the mission of the Gerald L. Ignace Indian Health Center. This year's theme, Building Community, Honoring Legacy, recognizes the leaders, staff, partners, and families whose dedication has helped shape GLIHC into the trusted community resource it is today.

As our organization enters a new chapter, we honor the legacy of those whose vision and leadership have guided our growth for over a decade each, including CEO Dr. Lyle Ignace, Director of Behavioral Health Deborah Black, and Board Chairman Steve Ninham. Their commitment to culturally grounded, compassionate healthcare has strengthened our community and built a foundation that will continue to serve generations to come. While leadership may change, our mission remains steadfast: to provide whole-person care that honors Native traditions, embraces innovation, and fosters wellness for the entire community. Together, we celebrate the journey that brought us here and look forward with hope as we continue building a healthier future for all.

Legacies are not defined by a single moment or individual, but by the communities they inspire. As we honor those who have helped build GLIHC, we recommit ourselves to their vision of strengthening our community, preserving our culture, and ensuring that future generations continue to thrive.

WHY SPONSOR?

The Red Shawl Gala is the main fundraiser for all services, community programming, outreach and events offered at the Gerald L. Ignace Indian Health Center. Invest directly in the health and well-being of the Native community in Southeastern Wisconsin. Your support allows the continuation of existing programs and addition of critical new programming.
